

Benjamin Akosa M.D.
Vin Nagaraj M.D.
Ana Segarra-Brechtel M.D.
Heerain Shah M.D.

Your Journey to Wellness

FINANCIAL RESPONSIBILITY

Commonly used terms:

Co-payment: A cost sharing arrangement in which the patient pays a specific amount for a service. Co-pay amounts vary depending on a particular plan and are usually for specific services such as office visits, emergency room visits or prescription drug.

Deductible: The amount the patient must pay annually before the insurance company will pay any expenses.

Out-of-pocket (coinsurance): The amount not reimbursed by the insurance company that is the patient's responsibility, such as deductibles, co-insurance, or co-pays. Coinsurance works after your deductible is paid.

IMPORTANT TO KNOW...

Our office will bill your insurance company as a courtesy. Regardless of what type of insurance plan you have, your medical bill is ultimately your responsibility.

Our billing office can answer any questions you have regarding your statement and set up a financial arrangement when necessary.

You may receive a separate bill from an independent lab for labs done in our office if you are self-pay or have a non-participating insurance plan.

Things to remember:

- Notify our office immediately with any changes to your insurance, address, or phone numbers.
- Bring a copy of your current insurance card to all office visits.
- Be prepared to pay any co-pays, co-insurance or deductibles at the time service is rendered.
- Your insurance plan may require that you use certain hospitals or outpatient facilities. It is your responsibility to make sure that you have coverage and our office is network with your carrier.

Please feel free to email us at Accounts@PsychiatricProfessionals.com for any questions or concerns.

Financial Responsibility- March 3, 2022